Students: apply now

Now is the time for students to make application to Financial Aid for the Rita Johnson Memorial Award. This award, as most of us are aware, was established in honour of Rita Johnson who worked in the Women's Access Centre. She was working towards a Master's degree in Counselling at UBC. Since Rita began post-secondary activities in her middle years after raising four children, the Award was established to assist mature women students enrolled in either part-time or full-time studies in any field of post-secondary study. The value of the award is $500-1000. For further information talk to Connie Gibbs in Financial Aid, M building.

Piano recital on Thursday

The Bachelor of Music Program is not the only program to be holding noon hour music presentations. On Thursdays from 12:00 to 1:00 in room H113 the faculty of the Music Therapy program will be performing. This Thursday, November 15, Nancy McMaster will be giving a piano recital. Nancy studied music in Canada and England and has performed throughout Vancouver. She has been teaching Music Therapy since 1976. On Nov. 22 the presentation will be a video tape about Music Therapy.

Tuition lottery continues

No, we haven't got the announcement of who won free tuition for a semester in the lottery being jointly run by the Quebec Studies people and the Student Union. That's because they've moved the draw date ahead to November 22. And what that means is that you still have time to get a ticket at $1.00 per ticket or 5 tickets for $4 at the Student Union Office (N116), the Info Centre and the Library.

World Congress in Vancouver

The World Congress on Education and Technology will be held in Vancouver from May 22-25, 1986. This will be a major conference considering the impact of new technology on our education systems and society, and among those attending will be government leaders, developers of new technology, futurists and philosophers, and members of the international public with an interest in those areas. The Informer will be publishing more detailed information in the future, but if you have questions now, direct them to the Coordinator, B.C. School Trustees Assn., 1155 W. 8th Ave., Vancouver, 734-2721.

Gym update by Paul Gallagher

As you may have heard, the College is planning to build a Recreational Facility on the Lynnmoor Campus, with 1986 as the target for the start of construction.

The preliminary plans provide for a main gymnasium floor with basketball, badminton, and volleyball courts, as well as four racquet courts (three racquetball and one squash), a large mezzanine exercise gym, and a small lounge.

The current planning for funding this facility is a combination of a student levy, support from voluntary contributions by Board members and employees, a major contribution by the District of North Vancouver, a general fund-raising drive, and a contribution from the provincial government. The estimated total cost of the project is $3.2 million. The District of North Vancouver has already committed its support in principle in the amount of $550,000.

As you can appreciate, the level of support we can expect from corporations and people in the community will be significantly influenced by the measure of tangible support from students, employees, and Board members. At the present time, the Student Society is proceeding with its plans to authorize a special levy on students for construction projects.

Concurrently, current and past Board members are being asked to pledge their support over the next five years. The provincial government has not committed its support, but we are very hopeful of that support if the rest of our campaign proves successful.

The purpose of this memo is to let you know in more detail of the current plans and of our intention to ask for voluntary contributions from employees over the next five years. The actual solicitation request with pledge card will be sent out shortly. All donations will, of course, be tax deductible. Contribution will be possible through cheque or payroll deduction.

I believe that the recreational facility will be of benefit to the whole North Shore community as well as to most college employees and that a decision to construct such a facility will earn us additional general support from the community we serve.

Paint France this summer

Painting in France, the popular program run by Paul and Babette Deggan, is being offered for the fifth time this summer. These informal workshops involve a 20 day stay in Montaigut-le-Blanc, a picturesque medieval hill village, 20 miles south of Clermont-Ferrand in the mountainous Auvergne region of France. Sixteen students spend three weeks painting and drawing under the guidance of Paul Deggan, who offers a program of lectures, critiques, and demonstrations. The cost of $950 does include tuition, accommodation and meals (with wine), but does NOT include the air fare. Travel costs and arrangements are the responsibility of the student, although there will be a package available through Canada World Travel. There is also an optional week in Paris preceeding the workshops, during which students will have a chance to visit some of the famous art collections and explore the city. If you would like to stay in a village dominated by ruins of a twelfth century castle, overlooking valleys rich in vineyards and orchards, in an area famed for castles, Romanesque churches, mineral springs, and cheeses, contact the Extension dept. at 325. The workshops will be offered three times: June 8 to 28, July 8 to 28, and August 8 to 28.

Saturday night at the crypt.

Wade, Richmond on TV

This week on Profiles (Ch. 10) you have a chance to watch Art instructor Lesley Richmond. Her show airs Sunday Nov. 11 at 8:30 and Thursday Nov. 22 at 6:30. In this show she talks about her work with hand painting on fabric-particularly fine silk-and discusses the demand for "one of a kind" fabric design. With her on the show will be some of her beautiful designs, including a large stuffed fabric wall hanging.

And then, on Sunday the 25th and Thursday the 29th, it's Keith Wade from the Biology department. An expert on wild plants, particularly those found in mountain ecologies, Wade will be discussing some of the very exotic places that the pursuit of his studies has taken him to. One of those places was Mount Omie in China, which has on it about the same number of wild plants as can be found in all of Canada. And, Wade will be talking about the fact that about half of all garden plants found locally have their origin in China and, to a lesser extent, Japan. The show will be illustrated with some of his excellent slides. Don't forget to tune in.

Crafts display

On display in the A building now, and to the end of this month, are clay and textiles from various collections. These displays are put up by the Crafts program.

Student Union events

The movies being held this week at 6:00 in the east wing of the North Cafe are (Nov. 13) Octopussy and (Nov. 14) Hunger. On the 15th (Thursday) the Marketing Club is having a social in the same location.

EDT dates

EDTs (English Diagnostic Tests) for students wishing to register for English classes next semester will be held on the following dates: Nov. 27, 19:00-21:30; Jan. 3, 13:00-15:00 and 19:00-21:30; Jan. 4, 09:00-11:30 and Jan. 7, 09:00-11:30. If you have questions, contact Eileen Steele, Humanities Division.

Soccer team finishes 2nd

The Men's Soccer team performed well again this year, coming in second in B.C.

In the semi finals they beat Malaspina College 3-0, but the tables were turned in the Finals, when they lost 3-0 to Cariboo.

Cariboo has gone on to the National Championship in Toronto. Three of our players made the all star team: Paul Zen, Duncan McGuffie and Greg Borrie. Congratulations to all.

Lecture, recital upcoming

The Bachelor of Music program is celebrating Canada Music Week with a special lecture by Colin Miles, Western Director of the Canadian Music Centre. He will be talking on "The Music of Canadian Composers" with a featurette on Canadian Women Composers. This lecture will be held Nov. 19 (Monday) at 1:30 in H113, and everyone is welcome. The college community is also invited to join them on Friday, Nov. 23 for the next in their series of Faculty Music recitals. Blaine Dunaway, Tom Hazlitt, Tony Nickels and Al Wold will be presenting a program of Bach and Teleman, a trio of sonatas, and jazz. Go to room H113 at 12:45.

On the left is Dr. Vithavas, Assistant Professor and Associate Dean for Student Affairs At Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok, and on the right is Dr. Ong, head of the Department of Sociology at the National University of Singapore. They were on campus on October 23 at noon to give a talk on some of the issues in their countries, and on the relationship between their countries and Canada. This presentation was part of the continuing work of our International Education Committee, who sponsored the International Experience event last term (see below).

A Window on the World

COLLEGE CANADA
OCT 15/84

By Douglas Jardine

In an age where jet aircraft and electronic communications have shrunk the world to a "global village," the vast majority of North Americans have yet to experience, even vicariously, cultures and countries other than their own.

It was with this in mind that a small group of Capilano College faculty set themselves the task of creating an international experience on the Lynnmour campus of the College. Their overall goal was to entice members of both the college and the local community to make a symbolic journey to a foreign country and experience a part of that other culture in the relative comfort of the college's facilities.

Reflecting the interests of the organizing committee and in recognition of the issues that should be faced by the developed countries of the north, the theme of the "international experience" was set as Canada and its relationship with Third World issues and concerns.

Out of the detailed planning emerged the title of the event: AN INTERNATIONAL EXPERIENCE — A WINDOW ON THE WORLD. The promotion of the event was hinged on a small, glossy brochure which served as a passport to the "other countries" that would be located on campus for a day. The front of the folded brochure was designed to look like an official passport, and inside was a list of the displays and a detailed schedule of individual activities. The equivalent of having your passport stamped was the deposit of the raffle ticket contained in the brochure-passport.

These brochure-passports were distributed on campus, through the secondary school system and a variety of other outlets; many were simply given to friends and strangers alike, and there were numerous requests for information.

On campus, promotion of the event urged faculty to incorporate one or more scheduled activities into their curriculum wherever possible, and to be lenient and supportive of any students who wanted to cut a class in order to participate in the International Experience. Faculty, students and staff were encouraged to wear a national costume for the day even if they were not direct participants.

The program began at noon with an official opening and the South African music of Themba Tana. An international menu was provided during the day in the cafeteria.

At 1:00 p.m., half-hour presentations by invited speakers began and continued until 7:00 p.m. Simultaneously, a National Film Board series of films was shown, addressing urgent issues and possible solutions for the increasing economic disparities between North and South.

A number of the presentations were made by College faculty: Dr. Keith Wade spoke on his recent visit to China to conduct botanical research; Terry Brown's topic was the College's study-travel course to the base of Everest. Other presentations were on multinational corporations, cultural imperialism, alternate energy, appropriate technology, population, and women in the Third World.

Information displays and booths were staffed by people from Canada World Youth, Canadian Crossroads International, Canadian University Service Overseas, International Development Education Resources Association, World University Service of Canada, Katimavik, Oxfam - Canada, Save the Children Fund, National Importers, and Great Expeditions. In addition, there were a number of cultural displays.

The international day closed with a magnificent performance of music and dance given to an audience of 500 by a small group of students from the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific. These students, all from outside the North American continent, were billeted with local families for two nights. For the hosts, this was an opportunity to gain fresh insights into the circumstances of developing countries.

The considerable efforts of the organising committee were amply rewarded by the many visitors to the College on international day. High school students were bussed in from many points within the college region and there was a steady stream of community members dropping by to participate in the scheduled activities.

Within the appropriate disciplines, many student assignments were made that took advantage of the films and presentations. Many of the College's foreign students entered into the spirit of the day and arrived for classes dressed in their national costume, as did some of the faculty.

At the end of it all, there was no doubt that the organizing committee had succeeded in their goal of opening a window on the world.

Stork dept.

The news from the Media Centre is that circulation staff member Karen Klaver has had a baby boy. Born November 2 at 4 am, he weighed ten pounds 1 oz, and Myrna Short points out that that's BIG, even in metric. Karen, the baby Bradley, and Grampa Ash Barton are all reported to be doing well.

All about the MLC

The Achievement Resource Centre and the Math department want to make sure that everyone knows about the facilities and services of the Math Learning Centre. To begin, it is located at the south end of the renovated first floor of the J building. One room, J114, is designed for self-paced learning courses, independent study, and contains the math library. In the general study area there are six Apple microcomputers available for student use and there is also a Math Video room in operation with three VCRs. Statistical and graphing packages are available for the computers and video tapes on topics in Algebra, Calculus and Statistics are on hand. Students requiring assistance in those areas may use the visual learning aids or consult the lab supervisor, Wendy Lynn, or instructors who drop in at assigned times. If you have any questions about the Math Learning Centre, call the Math department or visit them. They claim to be "user friendly."

BCRIC shares wanted

The Silver Harbour Manor, an activity centre for people 55 years or older, is asking people to donate their BCRIC shares to their endowment fund. Until the last fiscal year the Provincial government shared the operating expenses, but it has terminated financial support as part of the restraint program. Although they're getting help this year from the City and District of North Vancouver, Silver Harbour is now looking at having to raise 60% of the operating costs of the facility. The Centre provides companionship, hot meals, health services, educational opportunities, arts & crafts, exercise classes, and recreational activities, among other services. If you would like to donate some shares, or for that matter, some money, there is a box set up at the Student Info Centre in the lobby of B building. Or, you could contact the Silver Harbour Manor itself at 144 E. 22nd St., 980-2474.
